Summary

People are happy with the care they receive and speak positively about the care staff who support them. Improvements to the service have been made since the last inspection and the service is now fully compliant with regulations. People are involved in their care planning and encouraged to make their own choices and to remain as independent as possible. Care documentation is thorough and robust and clearly outlines people's needs and how they should be met. There are risk assessments in place where required. People's goals and preferences as to how their care is provided is documented. Care staff are safely recruited and receive training and supervision. Care staff are happy working at the service and feel well supported by management. People receive good continuity of care staff which has enabled them to build good working relationships. There are policies and procedures in place for the running of the service and the statement of purpose is kept under review and up to date. The responsible individual (RI) visits the service regularly and engages with people using the service. There are good governance arrangements in place and quality assurance monitoring in place regularly.

Well-being

People are treated with dignity and respect. Care staff receive appropriate training and feel well equipped to undertake their roles. Care staff receive formal supervision and feel well supported by management. People receive good continuity of care staff which has enabled them to build good relationships with the staff who support them. People are happy with the care they receive and tell us that it meets their needs. People speak positively about the care staff who support them and tell us that they do so with kindness and patience. Care documentation is robust and guides staff on how to care for people correctly. There are risk assessments in place and all documents are reviewed regularly to ensure they are up to date and accurate.

People are supported to have choice and control. People are at the centre of care planning and are included in the assessment of their needs. People and/or their representatives are encouraged to contribute to the writing of personal plans of care. Peoples likes, dislikes and preferences regarding how care is delivered is captured to ensure that care is provided in a person-centred way. People are supported to remain as independent as possible and to live their lives in the way they choose. The RI engages with people using the service and seeks their feedback as part of the monitoring of the service. Complaints to the service are taken seriously and people feel listened to. Improvements have been made to the organisations policies and documents which are now up to date, and kept under review, referring to Welsh legislation.

People are protected from harm and abuse. Active Care Group West Wales has a robust safeguarding policy in place and all staff receive training in the safeguarding of adults at risk of abuse. Safeguarding referrals are made to the Local Authority safeguarding team when required and any referrals are monitored as part of quality assurance monitoring. Care staff recruitment is safe with pre-employment checks completed correctly and there is a system in place to renew Disclosure and Barring Service (DBS) certificates regularly. All care staff working at Active Care Group West Wales are in the process of registering with Social Care Wales, the workforce regulator. The RI has good oversight of the service and there are good governance arrangements in place that monitor information such as accidents, incidents and complaints.

Care and Support

People are supported to have autonomy over their own lives. People are included in the assessment and review of their needs and have opportunity to express their wishes, feelings, and preferences regarding their care delivery. Care packages are person centred and built around people's individual needs and personal outcomes and goals. People have their own personal daily routines and do the things that matter to them within their home and in the community. People are also supported to go on holiday when they choose. People told us that they are living their lives the way they want to and are very happy with the service they receive as it is enabling them to live in their own home. People are supported and encouraged to be as independent as they can be but have the reassurance of staff presence to help maintain their safety when required. There is a robust policy in place for the administration of medication, but where possible, people are supported to manage their medications independently.

People get the right care at the right time. Care documentation is detailed, robust and clearly outlines people's needs and how they should be met. Documents are reviewed regularly to ensure they are kept current and relevant. People told us they have been able to write their own care plans to ensure their views are captured. These documents are important as they guide staff on how to care for people correctly. There are risk assessments in place and additional information on medical conditions to inform care staff when required. People have a consistent care staff team which has enabled them to build positive relationships with the care staff who support them. Care staff consistency is very important as it also ensures that people's care is always provided in their preferred way. People described the staff as "really good" and told us that they have a good routine and their needs are met with no issues at all. People feel able to raise concerns with the management and tell us they feel they are listened to when they do raise any issues.

Leadership and Management

People benefit from the leadership and management in place. Active Care Group West Wales benefits from an RI with good oversight of the service and an appointed manager who is in the process of registering with Social Care Wales. There are policies and procedures in place for the running of the service and improvements have been made to ensure documents reflect Welsh legislation. The RI monitors the service in line with regulatory requirements and engages with people using the service and care staff working at the service. A report is produced to support the visits and to demonstrate good oversight of the service. Care Inspectorate Wales are notified of incidents as set out in the regulations and safeguarding referrals are made to the Local Authority when required. Quality assurance monitoring takes place regularly and there are good governance arrangements in place that monitor data such as complaints, safeguarding referrals and accidents. This indicates that the provider is committed to providing a quality service and making improvements when required. The provider has ensured that their statement of purpose is kept under review and up to date. This document is important as it outlines what services can be offered, to who, how and when. Complaints to the service are taken seriously and dealt with correctly.

People are supported by staff who are safely recruited and well trained. We examined a selection of staff personnel files and found that improvements have been made as they all contain the required information. Staff recruitment is safe and robust as pre-employment checks including references and DBS certificates are applied for prior to employment commencing. These checks are important as they determine a person's suitability to work with vulnerable people. Care staff receive appropriate training which is refreshed regularly and they feel well equipped to undertake their roles. People told us that staff are competent and able to meet their needs with no issues. All staff working at Active Care Group West Wales receive a formal supervision in line with regulatory requirements. Supervision is important as it is an opportunity for staff to discuss practice issues or needs in a formal setting that is recorded.
