Summary

Children have a strong voice at this service. They know their needs, preferences and feelings will be taken into account and they can make their own choices and decisions. Children express enjoyment and they are comfortable, relaxed and very settled. Children have great opportunities to follow their own interests and they enjoy taking part in the activities on offer.

Nearly all staff implement policies consistently and promote physical activities, personal safety, and well-being. Staff are qualified, knowledgeable, kind and caring towards children; they show genuine passion in their roles. Staff provide a nurturing and child led setting. They are committed to providing a good range of play and learning activities with an appropriate balance of child and adult led opportunities. Staff plan and assess purposely to ensure children's interests and curiosities are developed further.

The people who run the setting have good measures in place to ensure the environment is safe, secure and well-maintained, indoors and outdoors. The environment has good indoor and outdoor play space for children to move freely. People who run the setting ensure the outdoor play space is used daily. They ensure children have access to a good range of resources and equipment to nurture children's overall developmental skills.

Leadership and management of the setting is appropriate and kept in an organised manner. They are passionate in ensuring they offer a high standard of care to children. They have developed good partnerships with parents and carers. There are suitable systems in place for managing records, maintaining policies and reviewing the quality of care.

Well-being

Good

Children are happy and relaxed at the setting. They benefit from consistent staff who know them well. Children build affectionate bonds of attachment as they receive lots of attention from staff who interact well with them. They are settled and clearly familiar with routines, for example, they know it's snack time and some fetch their own chair to sit at the table. Children join in with activities enthusiastically. They showed great joy as they took part in the 'Bucket Time' session. We also saw a child cuddle a staff member during this session which demonstrates positive relationships have been built. Their voice is strong, and they have the choice of what and where they want to play. Children's feelings and needs are acknowledged and valued.

Interactions between the children and the staff are consistently good. The children co-operate well for their age. For example, they shared the resources when playing with the dragon models. Children have a sense of belonging and are beginning to form friendships with each other. Children show affection and care towards each other. For example, we saw children cuddling each other, smiling at one another and discussing the character on their jumper. Another child was stroking a child's arm during 'Buket Time.'

Children are interested in their play and learning. They enjoy a range of interesting opportunities indoors and outdoors. They have the freedom to safely explore the environment. They are self-motivated to initiate their own play and to influence their tasks because there is a good balance of child and adult-led activities. We saw children enjoying exploring the Chinese New Year themed tuff spot, accessing chop sticks to move coloured rice around the tray. Another child followed directions from a staff member, enthusiastically matching and placing coloured blocks in containers.

Children have some opportunities to develop independence. During snack time, children use plastic knives to spread butter on crackers and they clear their plate independently once they have finished. Children access the sink with little support to wash their hands and place the paper towels in the bin independently. They confidently access resources and activities.

Care and Development

Good

Nearly all staff implement policies consistently. They promote physical activities, personal safety and well-being. Staff identify risk and are proactive and effective when managing this. During the visit, staff discussed resources they had removed due to breakages and discussed the need to replenish these. We also heard a staff member reminding a child to be careful as they played, "No throwing okay? You may hurt me." Staff have a thorough understanding of their role in protecting children and answered safeguarding questions confidently. Staff have completed all mandatory training, including paediatric first aid and food hygiene. They record accidents and these are countersigned by parents / carers.

Staff fully understand the behaviour management policy and consistently implement positive behaviour strategies. Staff speak respectfully with children, show interest, pleasure and care in all that they do. Staff praise children for their efforts and accomplishments to promote their confidence and self-esteem, "Da iawn. Good job." Staff encourage good manners and remind children to say 'thank you.' Staff know the children very well and have positive and close bonds with them. Staff understand the children's preferences and are sensitive to the needs of each child. They collect detailed information about the children before they start and communicate well with parents. This ensures the individual needs of each child are met.

Staff respect children's feelings, for example by asking them if they can assist them in wiping their nose. Nappy changing is carried out with dignity, care and respect, however the nappy changing policy is not always followed correctly. Snack times are calm and organised. Staff ensure children are provided with opportunities to choose their snack as well as spread butter on their crackers. However, opportunities to help themselves to fruit and pour their own drinks are not always actively promoted. Continuous and independent access to water is encouraged for all children throughout the sessions.

Staff support children's learning in a positive way. They are knowledgeable about children's development and plan activities accordingly. They assess children's progress frequently and monitor their learning and development well. Staff are committed to promoting the Welsh language and use incidental Welsh frequently with the children. Staff also ensure display boards are bilingual as well as key words within activities. On the day of the visit, the tuff spot activity for making pancakes included bilingual words. Staff provide a balanced learning environment where children follow their interests as well as planning some structured activities, for example matching colours and learning about Chinese New Year. Staff recognise when children may have additional needs. They take purposeful action and make effective use of the support available to them. Staff are consistently responsive. They make every effort to genuinely listen and communicate with the children. Interactions are positive, demonstrating warmth, kindness and patience. Staff take time to make sure their interactions are meaningful and beneficial to the children in their care.

Environment

Good

People who run the setting have good systems to ensure the environment is safe and secure. They conduct regular fire drills and keep a log of visitors. Risk assessments are in place to ensure unnecessary risks to children are eliminated as far as possible. There are comprehensive policies in place and ensure the environment is suitably safe, secure and well maintained. Consistent cleaning routines result in a clean and pleasant indoor environment, however no formal written record is kept of this.

People who run the setting ensure the environment has good indoor play space for children to move freely. They ensure the outdoor play space is used as often as possible and is an extension to the learning environment. Staff understand the importance of outdoor play to promote children's development. The outdoor area is safe and secure and offers a range of good play opportunities and equipment, including ride on toys, planting areas, mud kitchen and climbing equipment to name a few. The areas and equipment promote the development of a wide range of skills.

People who run the setting provide a wide range of good quality, developmentally appropriate play and learning resources to ensure children have good variety and choice. They provide stimulating resources for all ages and stages of development, which contribute to the children's all-round development. For example, through construction play, sensory activities, small world and creative activities. Children can access toys and resources easily, as they are stored at low level or within their reach. People who run the setting are committed to providing stimulating resources, including books, jigsaws and dolls to promote children's curiosity about the wider society, celebrating equality and cultural awareness.

Leadership and Management

Good

People who run the setting have a strong vision that they share with others and have a good understanding of their responsibilities as a provider. They are committed to providing a good service. The Statement of Purpose was updated following the inspection visit and accurately reflects the service provided and meets the National Minimum Standards. People who run the setting have a number of policies and procedures in place which are mostly followed and reflect the service offered. They also ensure there is valid public liability insurance in place.

People who run the setting ensure paperwork is stored securely and suitability checks are in place. Staff members working at the setting are long standing and nearly all files viewed included the documentation required. We discussed the requirement of viewing and obtaining all suitability documentation in relation to staff members, as some historic suitability documentation is stored elsewhere. People who run the setting carry out effective supervisions as well as annual appraisals with staff, and these are clearly documented. The performance management process is good and there is a culture of continuous professional development. Staff told us how much they enjoyed working at the setting and their pride and enthusiasm was obvious through comments such as; 'I'm really happy here. I feel really well supported. We work well as a team, we share ideas and contribute to the planning, and we have plenty of opportunities to attend courses.'

People who run the setting have completed a suitable quality of care report annually. They seek the views of parents and carers as well as the staff and children. People who run the service have responded to views and made improvements to the service by introducing an online platform to communicate with parents and carers. They ensure appropriate contracts are in place for the children in their care and they provide a reliable service. People who run the setting maintain relevant permissions from parents.

People who run the setting have developed meaningful and positive relationships with parents and carers. There are good systems in place to keep parents well informed about their child's time at the setting, through verbal communication and the settings online platform. Parents told us how supportive and helpful the staff are and how much the children love attending. Parents also told us how well their children have developed as a result of attending the setting.
